Warehouse Challenge Team Volunteering Day

Escape the office, have fun and make a difference!

“Taking a day out from the normal for such a fantastic cause is both humbling and fulfilling. Knowing that you are making a big difference to somebody less privileged than yourself is the most rewarding element.”

In Kind Direct distributes surplus consumer products donated by companies to charities where they are needed the most. Our warehouse is where we sort, prepare and pack donations that can be used by our charity partners.

Volunteers typically get involved in challenges that include sorting stock by type, age, or gender suitability; de-tagging, packing up clothing or crockery and other breakables. Your team will be given responsibility for managing how you approach the challenges and complete the tasks.

Participants tell us that our warehouse challenge days are a strong team bonding experience, as well as a chance for team members to demonstrate leadership and improve organisational, communication and problem-solving skills.

A team of hardworking volunteers can make a huge difference to our ability to respond quickly and cost-effectively to our charities’ needs!

I recently organised for my team to spend a day at In Kind Direct’s Warehouse.

We all enjoyed the day and we were very pleased with our contribution of 10,000 items sorted and ready for picking by the warehouse team.

FAQs

- Where does the volunteering take place?
  At In Kind Direct’s warehouse on Stafford Park, Telford, Shropshire.

- How many people can participate?
  Between 6 and 20 people.

- Is there a charge?
  There is no set charge for a team to take part in our volunteer days. However, most participating companies choose to make a donation to In Kind Direct as a contribution to our costs, which notably includes lunch and refreshments on the day. We suggest a donation of £30 for each person taking part.

- About In Kind Direct
